

City's story at click of a mouse

A NEW one-stop website has all the answers to everything you ever wanted to know about Sydney.

Lord Mayor Clover Moore today launches the Dictionary of Sydney, which covers the harbour city's story from colonial days to modern life.

Sydney City Council and the University of Sydney have joined forces with UTS, the State Records of NSW and the State Library of NSW on the project. It will draw on primary sources, bibliographic material, maps, images, databases and movies to "help illustrate the city's rich past".

City historian and Dictionary of Sydney board chairwoman Dr Shirley Fitzgerald said: "The Dictionary of Sydney will serve as a portal to our past and reflect on the development of one of the most character-filled and unique cities in Australia."

The website is www.dictionaryofsydney.org