Digi-Sydney launch near

A project to create an online encyclopedia featuring every significant place, person and event in Sydney's history will be launched next week.

The Dictionary of Sydney will use digital multimedia, graphics and the internet to link together the city's history.

It will be compiled by experts from the University of Sydney with the help of the City of Sydney Council.

Topics include art, urban planning, traffic, the history of Sydney's suburbs and social life and academic analysis of the city's development.
